RESPECT TO RIS MEMORY.

Mr. Peters, from the special committee appointed to prepare suitable resolutions relative to the death of lion, George W. Realey, late Senator from the Fifth district, presented the following report:

Tour committee appointed to prepare a memorial and resolutions commemorative of the life, character, and services of George W. Easley, lately a member of this body from the Fifth senatorial district, and expressive of the loss suffered by the Commonwealth in his death, and of our sympathy for his bereaved family and friends, respectfully present the following:

George W. Easley was born in the county of Giles in the year 1846. He was educated in the common schools of his county, and was emphatically a self-made man. At the early age of sixteen he volunteered in the service of the Confederacy, and fought gallantly for his country until its flag was folded in the field of Appomattox. Returning from the war he settled down for life in his native county, and there he resided until the day of his death.

The first position of public trust he held was that of clerk of his County Court. After his term of office had expired he studied law and began its practice, and soon took high rank in the profession. He served one term as judge of the County Courts of Giles and Bland and won golden opinion from bar and people for the conscientious and able manner in which he discharged the duties of this position. Afterwards he was elected Commonwealth's attorney for his county, and made a fearlies and popular officer. In November last he was elected as a Democrat to the Senate of Virginia to represent the counties of Bland, Giles, Pulseki, and Wythe by a majority of nearly 1,500. In this body he had taken high rank, and was universally beloved and esteemed.

As man he was kind and amiable, and won the love and confidence of all with er interests.

The Proposition to Remove the Capital.
Mr. Peters, the delegate from Campbell county, who offered the bill looking to removing the capital from Richmond to Lynchburg, did so in a spirit of jest, but he has now decided to make the matter practical if possible. When asked yesterday by a Dispaic's reporter as to whether he would press his bill Mr. Peters said:
The proposition was suggested in merriment, but the matter was discussed generally by the newspapers about a year ago and was probably the subject of some legislation four years ago. I have received so much encouragement from influential, thinking men, however, that I have determined to press the matter for all it is worth, and if no one else in the land is disposed to treat the subject seriously you may at least consider me as heartily in favor of what I believe to be a feasible and practical plan by which the State will receive a large revenue from the sale of her property situated in this city, and will acquire a new Capitol and Executive Mansion worthy of the dignity of the Commonwealth which will become a source of pride to all native Virginians and an object of wonder and admiration to all our visitors, and will be a most profitable investment for Lynchburg.

The Chief of Police is in receipt of a letter from C. A. Whitten, an attorney at law in Lawnderboro', Ala., making 'inquiries as to the death of Mrs. Camilla Summs, which is supposed to have occurred in this city in 1874. ATTRACTIONS THIS WEEK.

Stringfellow's Lecture.

Miss Marie Wainwright, who comes to is fresh from a five-weeks' successful season in New York, will be seen at the Mozari Academy for three nights and Saturday matinée, commencing next Wednesday night the 29th. There will be no Saturday-night performance and the engagement will conclude with Saturday's matinée, A grand revival of Shakspeare's charming comedy "Twelfth Night" will be the bill throughout the engagement, with Miss Wainwright as Viola, in which rôle the press of New York bestowed unstinted praise upon her. Miss Wainwright has selected with great care a large and excellent company, including some of the best Shakspearian actors on the American stage, several of whom have occupied leading positions with such renowned artistes as Modjeska and the late Miss Neilson, both of whom were acknowledged the best interpreters of Viola on the English-speaking stage, and with whom the critics now compare Miss Wainwright. It is easy for the lady's many Richmond friends and admirers to understand why she should make a most charming Viola, and that the remark of an enthusiastic critic that "in boys' dress she is a dream of beauty" is hardly an exaggeration. Twelfth Night will be produced in a very elaborate and complete manner. Everything used upon the stage—scenery, costumes, properties, and furniture—will be brought here by the company, and the local management is asked to supply only a clear stage and empty property-room. The play is in five acts, and in its present form includes nine separate scenes. The public are particularly notified that the performance will begin at promptly 8 o'clock, and that the first scenes, which last only a few minutes, are rare stage pictures, and should not be missed. The matince will begin at 2:36 o'clock. Police Court yesterday morning was that of Maggie Green, charged with feloniously utting and wounding Sarah Cook with inulting and beating Maggie Green. These two young colored women live at the house of Lizzie Allen, on Franklin treet between Thirteenth and Fourteenth, ind it was here that the trouble occurred Sarah Cook said that they began to fuss about a fire. She went home Friday evening and seeing a fire in Maggie's room and knowing that Maggie did not have any coal, thought that she had used her (Sarah's) coal, and she charged her with having taken her coal. A quarrel ensued and Maggie threw a bowl, striking her on the arm. She (Sarah) retaliated by striking Maggie with a pitcher; then remarked, "Now we sire even," and went into her room and laid on the bed. While she was on the bed Maggie came in and threw a lighted lamp at her, striking her on the head and indicting a wound which was sewed up. After striking her with the lamp, Maggie ran out and got a policeman. SARAH'S STORY. lamp, Maggie ran out and got a policeman.

THE OTHER SIDE.

Maggie took the stand and testified that Sarah threw the lamp at her first; then she took the lamp and threw it at Sarah. During the fight Sarah threw a pitcher and bowl at her, cutting her head.

Dr. C. W. P. Brock testified that he examined the wounds; found Sarah Cook with two wounds on the side of the head; one of them extended to the bone, and it required sewing up. The other woman also had a wound on her head. He did not consider the wounds dangerous.

Mr. Stringfellow, at the earnest solicitation of Company C, First Virginia Regiment, has consented to deliver another address at Mozart Hall on the night of the 28th instant. He promises new matter and methodical arrangement, as his address is the first of a series inaugurated by Company C with a view to preserving in permanent form some of the treasures of knowledge possessed by distinguished Confederates, which information unless gathered by such a plan will pass away forever with the actors. Every effort has been made to render this address popular, for upon the manifest local interest in this will depend the prosecution or abandonment of the scheme which has already the approval and promised help of some of the most distinguished men whose fortunes were cast with the southern Confederacy, and should it he carried out much that is unknown and valuable will be added to history.

The Rev. Mr. Sturgis and the Late D

To the Editor of the Dispatch:

I take it for granted that all good people in and out of the Church have found relief in reading the last card of the ministers, before whom the case of Rev. Mr. Sturgis was finally determined.

Mental disease is often radically cured. I knew a minister in a sister church years ago, who was cured of maniacal insanity, and lead a long and useful life to its close. All will join me, I doubt not, in the hope and prayer that such a happy result may come to Mr. Sturgis and his family.

The hope of the Church and of the world rests upon a holy ministry and priesthood.

THE LETTER contains unmistaltable internal evidence of a perturbed and disordered brain. There is abundant evidence besides this to justify the last decision of the ecclesiastical court.

Mr. Sturgis's early life was one of hardship and toil, and the place he won in the confidence of the Church was well merited, as can be proved to the satisfaction of any reasonable man.

I take the liberty of writing this letter without the suggestion of any one, and
